Early Festival Art Shows Were Inclusive, Expansive

by Barbara Simon

Art shows have been part of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival from the first year in 1955, when Ben Abramowitz, the acclaimed painter and sculptor, served as chair of the first art show committee. For the first five years of the festival, Abramowitz, as chief organizer, was the person most responsible for starting the shows and making them successful events. It was his leadership that established the character of the art shows.

His own words, headed “A People’s Exhibit,” printed in the August 23, 1956, issue of the Greenbelt News Review express this best:

“This is a people’s exhibit and not a professional art show. Therefore it will have a distinct character of its own. An art fair of this kind is strongest in the virtue of directness, honesty and untroubled sincerity. All people not professionally involved in the plastic arts do some sort of creative work at some time or other.

“Be it knitting a quilt, huckweaving a scarf, designing and decorating a shoe-box, painting a picture, whittling, drawing, metal work, calligraphy, designing toys or cartooning and picture-collecting the activity is expressive and has a place in our art-fair. Its success depends on your unhesitating participation. The more personal forms of handicraft, the richer will be the entirety; the more widespread response of entries, the more exciting will be the show.

“As you see, it will not depend on a few exceptional talents but rather a peoples representation of inventive activity in all forms of art.”

The early shows reflected this largeness of spirit. The exhibits were open to anyone residing in Prince George’s County at a time when there were very few art shows in the county that local artists could enter. Children and teens were included from the

Potters Raises Funds for Miriam’s Kitchen

by Christine Coyle, Jeri Holloway and Karen Morgenstern

Eleven potters and instructors from the Greenbelt Community Pottery Studio helped raise over $1,300 for Miriam’s Kitchen, an organization that serves the homeless population in Washington, D.C. The third annual “One Hundred Bowls of Compassion” was held in the World Bank atrium in Washington on May 6. The idea was introduced in 1999 as a fundraising project for Miriam’s Kitchen, which provides a daily healthy breakfast, case management, after breakfast and transitional housing programs.

One Hundred Bowls of Compassion was the inspiration of Jonathan Kirkendall, pottery instructor at the Greenbelt Community Center and former director of social services at Miriam’s Kitchen. While he was attending Naropa University, Kirkendall came across a quote from a Tibetan Buddhist meditation master. The master says “The action of the bodhisattva is like the moon shining on 100 bowls of water, so that there are 100 moons reflected in 100 bowls of water.” This quote was the inspiration for the pottery show and the fundraiser. Kirkendall “wanted the event to be an opportunity to show off pottery and to introduce the public not just to pottery but to potters themselves.”

During Kirkendall’s classes in Greenbelt, students and other teachers were encouraged to create a choice, large, hand-thrown bowl or set of smaller bowls to the event. Those who contributed bowls were invited to attend

Utility Assistance At County Expo

The Prince George’s County Utility Assistance Expo will be held on Wednesday, August 18 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Prince George’s County Ballroom, 2411 Pinebrook Ave. in Landover. Free shuttle service will be provided from the Landover Metro Station. The expo’s objective is to explain the financial benefits available to low income county residents for gas, electric and heating bills, and sign up qualifying persons.

Low income residents are those with incomes of $1,123 per month or less and couples with $1,515 per month. This year over 5,000 eligible county residents received more than $2 million in benefits, yet approximately 17,000 additional households qualify but do not participate.

The expo is free and open to the public. Persons attending are urged to bring copies of proof of identity and residence, social security numbers(s), lease or rent receipt, proof of household income for the past 30 days and utility receipts. For more information call 301-909-6300.

the event. Individual sponsor tickets started at $225.

Over 40 volunteers from Miriam’s Kitchen along with Miriam’s chef Steve Badt coordinated the evening’s food preparation. While potters and guests were served delicious foods, beverages and desserts, a silent auction of bowls was held. The live auction began with many exquisite items, trips and vacation packages including a villa in the south of France. These were donated by various sponsors of the

Four Generations Serve Country in Its Wars

by Dea Zugby

Four generations of a Greenbelt family have served their country through service in the military from World War I to the current war in Iraq. The tradition began with Angelo Gigliotti, who immigrated to the United States from Italy and served in the U. S. Army in World War I. His son Vincent, who lived in Boxwood from 1963 through 1984 and currently lives in Lanham, first served in the Army at the end of World War II until 1948 with the 11th Airborne and later served in the Korean War with the 101st Airborne. He ended his military service in the Army Reserves 43 years later.

Vincent’s son Gregory B. Gigliotti of Hedgewood Drive grew up in Greenbelt and has lived in Boxwood since 1984. A Captain with the Prince George’s County Fire Department, he is a Chief Warrant Officer in the National Guard who was placed on active duty and recently sent to Kosovo in the Balkans. His son Anthony served in the U. S. Navy in 2002 for six months on the Harry S. Truman aircraft carrier

City Religious Leaders Celebrate Amity, Support

by Bay Woods

On Monday, July 12 the Greenbelt City Council held a “stakeholder” meeting with leaders of religious organizations in the city. Council has held such stakeholder meetings for about seven years, meeting regularly with representatives of business and community leaders.

Mayor Judith Davis characterized the cordial meeting as a “two-way conversation” between the city and its religious leaders, who, she said, can receive input from their congregations that council may not have a chance to get. The mayor asked each of the nine religious leaders to express their concerns; all expressed overwhelming support for the city and the services it provides.

Almost all present were members of the Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association (GILA), formerly the Greenbelt Clergy Association. GILA meets monthly, at rotating locations.

Jaco ten Hove of Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church said there was a considerable population of the elderly

Local Democrats Gather To Watch Kerry Speech

by James Giese

The Greenbriar Community Room was filled to standing room only with Democrats eager to hear John F. Kerry accept his party's nomination to be candidate for president on July 29. The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club of Greenbelt sponsored the party which was attended by Democrat loyalists throughout the county. Club President Bill Hunt told the group that it was the largest Democratic gathering to hear Kerry speak south of Boston.

Although Kerry's speech was not scheduled until 10 p.m., Democrats began to gather three hours earlier. A large-screen television carried the Democratic convention at one corner of the room. On opposite walls, tables groaned with food and drink. As the evening went on, the tables became even more laden as attendees brought in their own goodies to share.

Many who came were dressed in red, white and blue. A variety of campaign hats were worn. There was even one oversized Uncle Sam hat. Besides hats, buttons and pins were prominently worn to display the support of the audience for Kerry and other Democrats. Some also wore relics from campaigns of the past.

Elected officials joining the festivities included County Councilmember Douglas Peters, Delegates Anne Healey and Justin Ross and Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis. Davis, sporting her own partisanly patriotic chapeau, beamed at the crowd who came out for the event.

While at first the events on TV were, for the most part, ignored as old acquaintances were renewed and the food tables were depleted, the crowd became more attentive as the evening wore on and the speakers became more prominent. The local Democrats cheered along with their fellow Democrats in Boston as the speakers said the things that they all wanted to hear.

Kerry drew the biggest applause. The crowd paid close attention to his words and the group cheered often and loudly, sometimes chanting his name. When the speech was finished, red, white and blue balloons fell on the crowd from above as Kerry was given a standing ovation.

While many had to stand, there was general agreement that while they could have been more comfortable watching from home, it had been more fun to share their enthusiasm with other like-minded people.

"Nurturing the Mother" New at Pleasant Touch

by Pat Davis

Pleasant Touch, a day spa located at Roosevelt Center, is offering a new massage therapy for expectant mothers. This massage focuses on the comforting and nurturing of the woman through the different stages of pregnancy using massage techniques. This can also include massage for women trying to become pregnant and post-pregnant women.

Ayshah Salaam, one of the massage therapists at Pleasant Touch, learned these techniques at a class in Charlottesville, Va., called "Nurturing the Mother." Salaam graduated from the Virginia Learning Institute as a massage therapist in 2002 and has been working at Pleasant Touch since August 2003. At first she worked as the office manager, as well as doing massage, and now she has left the front desk to focus on massage and to apprentice in esthetics.

She had massaged some expectant women before but said that she was, "excited learning more information about pregnant women." She added, "We as human beings are getting away from our true, natural selves. Instead of nurturing our families we are too concerned with our jobs. In class I came to realize the importance of family." Excitedly and enthusiastically Salaam told how the women in the class exchanged stories of their own births (as told by their mothers) and saw an actual birth on film before they learned the massage techniques. Everyone left the class feeling moved and wanting to help other women.

Cautions

Before starting a pregnancy massage program, Salaam recommends that the woman get the go-ahead from her medical provider. There are some cautions and contraindications, such as high blood pressure, edema, varicose veins, fever, cuts and rashes that will affect how a massage is given or if it can be done.

During pregnancy a woman's body goes through some of the most profound and radical changes of her life. The center of gravity changes, ligaments and connective tissues soften, muscles become stressed and certain hormones become more active. Women can experience lower and middle back pain; walking becomes more difficult and even the arms can ache. Massage can relieve many of these aches and pains and facilitate overall relaxation. It can help sleep and improve self-image.

"Nurturing the Mother" with massage starts by making the expectant mother comfortable using body positioning and pillow placement to make her "feel like a princess." Oils, such as lavender and vitamin E, are used for their calming and skin softening effects. There are 20 different strokes that make up the massage starting at the head and finishing with the feet. Both the front and back of the body are massaged using circular strokes; long, gliding strokes; stretching; rocking; and reflexology (feet).

Exercise

In addition to massage it is beneficial for the expectant mother to exercise if allowed by her medical provider. Women who exercised before pregnancy can usually do so during pregnancy, although not as vigorously. Because the ligaments and tendons soften in preparation for birth, the woman must be careful not to overstretch. Salaam says that when Pleasant Touch moves to new expanded quarters in the Center the spa plans to start exercise classes for pregnant women.

Salaam also learned massage for pre-conception that some claim has helped them to conceive. A gentle massage can even be done during labor to assist in the birthing process. This technique involves positioning, breathing and visualization to help the mother.

After birth there is a massage designed to help bring the woman's body back into alignment and to relieve muscle aches by flushing lactic acid out of the tissues. This massage, which involves every part of the body can also help to shrink the uterus. It is recommended that this be started within the first week after birth to be most effective.

Pre-conception, pregnancy and postpartum massage is available now at Pleasant Touch. Ayshah or the staff will be happy to answer any questions about these services or to make an appointment.

A Review

At the Theater It's “De-Lovely”

by Eli Flam

“De-Lovely,” currently at Old Greenbelt Theatre, conveys in a dozen or more performances of Cole Porter’s redolent songs what a master of wit and winsomeness – and sometimes of poignance – was this son of Indiana. Kevin Kline also hits all kinds of right notes in playing Porter from emergence in Paris in the early 1920s to his difficult last years, back in the U.S.

At the same time, Director Irwin Winkler chose to frame the film in a creaky, guide-from-beyond device that worked a lot better in, say, “It’s a Wonderful Life.” But especially compared to “Night and Day,” a painfully phony 1946 biopic with Cary Grant as Porter, “De-Lovely” depicts, for the most part candidly yet tastefully, Porter’s homosexual bent and attendant ins and outs with his wife.

Some eight or more years older, Linda Lee (until the end, played a bit archly by Ashley Judd) was in many ways the pivot of his life – a life whose more haunting refrains are captured in two of Porter’s redolent titles, which get fair airing along with so many others in the film: “In the Still of the Night” and “What Is This Thing Called Love?” Look also for top musicians to weigh in, from “Anything Goes” through “Begin the Beguine” to “Kiss me, Kate.” Play it again, Cole.

Diabetes Show To Be Taped

“A Diabetes Overview” with Becky Labonowski, RN, of the Prince George’s County Health Department, is the subject of the “Ask the Experts” cable television show to be taped on Tuesday, August 17 from 11 a.m. to noon at the Greenbelt Community Center. The public is invited to this session which will be taped for rebroadcast on Channel 71. Donation Drop-off On Saturday

The city’s Donation Drop-off, co-sponsored by the American Rescue Workers, will be held Saturday, August 14 behind the Municipal Building from 9 a.m. to noon. Bring clean, usable clothing, small household items, curtains, towels, linens and toys. Donations will be used by needy people in Prince George’s County and are tax-deductible. Donation Drop-off is held the second Saturday of each month.

Democrats Donate To Emergency Fund

The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club has continued its tradition of donating its “Wish Box” proceeds to the City of Greenbelt’s Emergency Assistance Fund. At the end of July, Sylvia Lewis, treasurer of the club, presented the city manager with a check for $106 representing the money collected in the club’s “Wish Box” so far this year. Members donate to the “Wish Box” as they share personal announcements with others attending the meeting. The fund offers temporary assistance to needy residents who may be facing eviction.

A second donation of $57 was given by member Frank Serene, who won that amount from the 50/50 raffle held at the club’s convention party on July 28. He asked that this windfall be used to help Greenbelt families.

Obituaries

Clifford H. Simonson

Former Greenbelter City Councilmember Clifford (Cliff) Simonson, 89, of DeKalb, Ill., died Sunday, August 1, 2004, at Barnes-Jewish Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., from complications following heart surgery.

Mr. Simonson was born October 31, 1914, in Agate, N.D. on the farm his father Otto had homesteaded in 1897. He graduated from Bisbee High School. His White Rock chickens won the blue ribbon in every fair he entered them in and he earned the State Farmer gold medal in Future Farmers of America.

In the Great Depression years, between high school and college, his full-time farm work and his poultry earnings (chickens and turkeys) helped save the family farm.

Mr. Simonson attended North Dakota State Agricultural College and later the University of Tennessee (Knoxville), where he earned a B.S. in soil and plant science with heavy emphasis in chemistry, biology and mathematics.

On March 1, 1942, Mr. Simonson joined a group of scientists doing chemical warfare research at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. On August 17, 1942, he prepared the first batch of a catalyst that destroyed the designated poison gas available to both sides in World War II.

After the projects at Northwestern were completed, he was transferred to the University of Illinois, Champaign Urbana. He worked with Lyle Smith, a nuclear physicist, to develop a spray solution to wipe out anopheles mosquitoes in the SW Pacific combat area. Using a specially designed exhaust manifold to disperse the spray, fighter planes would fly just above the treetops. After the mosquitoes were killed, the LST would go ashore. Prior to controlling malaria, the troops suffered more casualties from malaria than from enemy fire.

Resuming graduate study after the war, Mr. Simonson taught four semesters of analytical chemistry at the University of Illinois where he earned his M.S. degree. He received his PhD at the University of Maryland 15 years later.

He married Eve Lind on October 23, 1948. They had five children, four of them in Washington D.C., and one in Georgetown, Guyana. In Guyana he carried out a wetlands soil survey under the Technical Assistance Program for underdeveloped countries.

In 1948 Mr. Simonson joined a group of scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Beltsville, in preparing strategic military intelligence maps and reports on soils, terrain and off-road cross-country movement of military vehicles and personnel. Some 13 countries in Europe and Asia, covering 7 1/2 million square miles, were thus mapped.

From 1955 to 1957, Mr. Simonson carried out the world's first soil survey by helicopter. His 17-sheet map and 608-page report covered 5,000 square miles of fresh water marshes and swamps in Guyana. That map and report are still being used as the master plan for land-use decisions where 90 percent of the country's people live. The report was ultimately catalogued in the U.S. Library of Congress in 1999.

When Mr. Simonson finished the Guyana survey, the family moved to Greenbelt where they lived at 8-C Ridge Road. He continued to work at the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Beltsville.

Mr. Simonson took an active part in the city. During the 1960s he was appointed a charter member of the Greenbelt Advisory Planning Board (APB). When the APB voted down the proposed development of 360 acres in the core of the city and of a shopping center in the Golden Triangle, council followed by unanimously voting down the first proposal. Council was split on the shopping center, but it too was voted down. However, those who had voted for it were not re-elected to council. Mr. Simonson ran in 1963 and was elected to the 15th council in a hotly contested election, in which six candidates failed to get votes from a majority of votes and had to face off a week later in a run-off election. In 1965, he lost reelection to Richard Pilski by one vote in another run-off election, the last held in the city.

Mr. Simonson served Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) in various ways before being elected to the GHI Board of Directors in 1966. He had been on the Greenbelt Homes Member and Community Relations Committee and the Land and Parking Committees. Simonson's testimony about the necessity for a library in Greenbelt was effective in preventing cancellation of the project.

He also served on the PTAs of Greenbelt Center and Greenbelt Junior High Schools, the Greenbelt Consumer Services, Greenbelt Community Church and the Steering Committee of Citizens for a Planned Greenbelt. He was listed in "American Men of Service" and "Who's Who in the East."

The Simonsons left Maryland in 1968 when Mr. Simonson became an associate professor of geography at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, where he taught physical geography, conservation of natural resources and four different courses in soils, including world soil geography. In Illinois, he continued his active service of his community.

Mr. Simonson is survived by four daughters, Laura (Ray Pudwill) Simonson of Plymouth, Minn., Linda (Bill Brown) Simonson of Bowie, Jenny (Roger) Burke of Athens, Ga., and Judy (David) Maffitt of University City, Mo; son Carl (Ardis) Simonson of DeKalb; brother, four sisters and 10 grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Eve Simonson of DeKalb. The funeral service was held on Saturday, August 7. Memorial contributions may be sent to the family at 154 Park Ave, DeKalb, and will be distributed to Mr. Simonson's favorite charities.

Giving in charity is one of the important teachings of Islam, greatly rewarded by God and an obligation on every individual who has the means to do so.

"And the likeness of those, who spend their substance, seeking to please God and to strengthen their souls, is as a garden, high and fertile; heavy rain falls on it, but makes it yield a double increase in harvest, and if it receives not heavy rain, light moisture sufficeth it. God seeth well whatever ye do . . . O ye who believe, give of the good things which ye have earned, and of the fruits of the earth which we have produced for you . . ."
- The Holy Qur'an, 2:265 & 267

Friends of the Brenner family were glad to see them in Greenbelt briefly while in transit from Rich's assignment in Hawaii to England. They expect to be in England for three years. They arrived in Greenbelt for a short visit after driving across country, visiting family enroute and were sorry to have so little time in Greenbelt. Jan, Rich and daughter Beth have left for England; son Tony is staying here to attend Prince George's Community College. They would welcome email sent to richjanbrenner@hotmail.com from all of their friends.

Those who would like to seek help in finding their legal rights as grandparents should call 301-486-0957. Synagogues Create Joint Educational Programs

by Jordan Choper

Recent demographic studies have indicated that which became evident to two Jewish congregations in our area, Mishkan Torah in Greenbelt and Beth Torah in Hyattsville, i.e., that there are fewer Jewish families with children living in the Greenbelt-College Park and Hyattsville area. This became evident when the enrollment of the supplementary religious schools of the two synagogues dropped significantly over the past few years. To address the issue in order to have an active educational program in each of the congregations, the two synagogues have joined together to explore, at least for this year, a joint program that holds great promise for success.

The kindergarten through second grade students of Mishkan Torah will attend classes on Wednesday and Sunday at Mishkan Torah. Beth Torah students will attend Wednesday and Saturday evenings at Beth Torah. These classes, especially on Saturday and Sunday will be interchangeable so if a student at Beth Torah cannot make a class on Saturday evening, he or she can attend a similar class at Mishkan Torah on Sunday morning and vice versa.

Third through eighth grade students will meet on Wednesday at 7 to 9 p.m. at Beth Torah. On Sunday mornings Mishkan Torah students will meet at Mishkan Torah while Beth Torah students will meet at Beth Torah on Saturday evenings.

Once a month there will be a family program with the students and their parents. These family programs will alternate between Beth Torah on Saturday evenings and Mishkan Torah on Sunday mornings. Family field trips will also be scheduled.

Beth Torah is an unaffiliated Conservative synagogue and Mishkan Torah is dually affiliated with the United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism and the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation.

very beginning and were recognized with awards.

As suggested by Abramowitz's article, a variety of crafts were included as well as paintings, drawings and sculpture. One year an artist received an award for a silver bowl. Since there was no separate photography show yet, photographs were included in the art show as well.

Like all Greenbelt projects, the art shows were successful because folks worked together cooperatively. Abramowitz credited other Greenbelters who worked on the shows, especially his two fellow committee members Donald Uhlin, art instructor at Greenbelt Junior High School, and Gordon Lawson, a teacher and ceramic artist.

Albert Ellerin, of the local Arts and Crafts Supply Company, donated art supplies and trophies from his business. The local artists and craftspeople who entered their work made the shows possible and their efforts earned many compliments from visitors, as Abramowitz noted in a letter to the News Review on September 5, 1957. "It is they who are to be thanked for adding this cultural activity, with its gaiety of color and unique attractiveness to the Labor Day Festival."

Exhibits Expand

Organizers of the art shows were gratified to see the exhibits growing every year. In 1955, 25 artists exhibited 75 works placed around the pool. The next year, when the show was moved to

Roosevelt Center closer to the other activities and exhibits, 37 artists displayed their work. In 1956 the organizers arranged for a "larger and better situated area," the grassy lawn "across from the drug and variety stores" for the "Festival Art Exhibit" (from Abramowitz's communication cited above). In his follow-up letter on September 5, 1957, he mentioned that the art works filled 10 stands and that the exhibit was "improving in both the physical equipment and the number of entries."

The success of the annual art shows inspired Greenbelt artists to consider other arts activities during the rest of the year. In his letter to the News Review of October 1, 1959, Abramowitz mused on some of these suggestions growing out of the enthusiasm for the art shows. He suggested that perhaps an art club could be started where people could come together for regular activities.

Greenbelters had taken to heart the words of Uhlin in his August 1956 article in the News Review, in which he wrote that art is an experience for everyone and that, "We are all artists."

Note: The author wishes to thank Ben Abramowitz for encouraging her to write this article. Abramowitz, now 87, after over 50 years of residence in Greenbelt, moved last year to Rockville. He is currently in the midst of preparing for a new exhibition of his work in 2005.

event. Both silent and live auction generated $175,000 for Miriam's Kitchen.

Greenbelt potters were excited to be able to make such a significant contribution to the event. Pottery students were inspired and encouraged that Kirkendall thought they would be able to produce a work of high quality for this important cause.

Contributing potters from the Greenbelt Community Studio were Gina Mai Denn, Christine Coyle, Jeri Holloway, Pam Hagerhorst, Sandra Dwiggin, Diane K. McDaniel, Janet Lee-Smeltzer, Christina Guidorizzo, Kerry Show, Katie Scott-Childress and Gary Irby.

The National Aquarium's animal husbandry and education staff will be on hand to answer questions and provide talks throughout the day. in the Persian Gulf and now is serving in Norfolk. Anthony's brother Jake, a recent graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt High School, was enrolled in the four-year ROTC program there. He spent one semester at Virginia Tech, in Blacksburg, Va., on a ROTC scholarship before being called to duty with the U. S. Marine Corp Reserves. He left for Fallujah, Iraq on August 5. Jake has been a volunteer fireman at the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department.

Asked what inspired this love and devotion to country and tradition of military service, Vincent simply said, "It's part of life . . . to do our best. I'm more concerned about my children, and my family than myself." Vincent is clearly proud of his son and his grandsons.

For Greg's wife Kathy, mother of Anthony and Jake, the long periods of absence by her loved ones are a strain. "It's nerve-racking," she said. Like others in the family, Kathy remains stoic while waiting at home with another son, Craig May, for the return of Gregory, Anthony and Jake.

in his congregation, who were particularly happy with the programs for seniors offered by the city.

Rabbi Jonathan Cohen of the Mishkan Torah Congregation agreed that Greenbelt is an extraordinary place. Joking, he said that it was great "to bring Greenbelt to Montgomery County" since much of his congregation is from there. He said that Mishkan Torah is the "Greenbelt for the synagogue world."

Rev. DaeHwa Park of Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church said that there was "no boundary" between his congregation and the city. "The city has been great to the local congregation," he said, which discusses city issues in study groups from time to time.

Students in the congregation are interested in doing community service as volunteers, a concern other congregations shared. Councilmember Edward Putens recommended a community fair where groups who need community service volunteers could get together with community members.

Jim Fischer said that Greenbelt was a "haven of community" that was great for the Baha'i Community, which is "multicultural."

The Rev. Walter J. Tappe of St. Hugh's Catholic Church said he was delighted to be back in Greenbelt. He was in residence at St. Hugh's from 1997 to 2000. He looks forward to taking an active role in the community.

C.K. Dhananjayan, chairman of the Sri Siva Vishnu Temple, said that although the temple is in Lanham, much of the congregation is from Greenbelt. He said the Hindu community is very happy with Greenbelt and he wants to be a part of that community.

A few concerns were expressed. The Rev. Stephen Mentz of the Holy Cross Lutheran Church on Greenbelt Road expressed concerns over U-turns at Lakecrest Drive directly in front of the church. Mentz said he witnessed up to eight accidents per year. The mayor responded that the state agreed that the site warrants a traffic light but there currently is not sufficient funding. City Manager Michael McLaughlin said a light was expected within nine months.

Shelters for Homeless

Two religious programs, "Warm Nights" and "Safe Havens," provide shelter for the homeless in the winter months. Davis said that the city wants to help the homeless, regrets that Greenbelt does not have a homeless shelter and saluted the religious help. C.K. Dhanajayan said that the Hindu community provided shelter for the homeless in the temple. They also make sandwiches to send to shelters on a weekly basis, he said.

Helpful Funds

Council and the religious leaders also discussed other areas of cooperation, such as the Good Samaritan Fund and the Emergency Assistance Fund. Handled by the city, these funds do not represent city assets but the city assumes fiduciary responsibility for them. The fund was started in 1948 in cooperation with the Greenbelt clergy to assist out-of-town people temporarily stranded in Greenbelt or people with low incomes who are in urgent need of transportation, gas or food.

The Emergency Assistance Fund is used to help Greenbelt residents who need help paying the rent to avoid possible eviction from their homes. The fund is administered by Greenbelt CARES and the Ladies of Charity of Saint Hugh's Catholic Church. Mary Linstrom, of the Ladies of Charity, said it is "amazing how well it is going." Kathleen McFarland, also representing the Ladies of Charity, asked council about a resource that would help people learn how to plan budgets to avoid emergency situations. Councilmember Leta Mach praised the idea and noted that credit unions often provide such services.

Mach asked about a new fund for the families of victims of tragic traffic accidents. GILA would act as a "trusted third party" to which money could be donated with the assurance that the money would not go to a charity organization but directly to the family in need. Rev. ten Hove said that GILA would be discussing the issue but still had a few problems to work out.

McLaughlin said that the option "is out there for the city to set up such a third fund." The mayor said that because "Greenbelt is a very caring community, we find more ways to care."

Enroll Students Now for School

School starts on August 23 in Prince George’s County. To avoid delays, parents should enroll their children now at the closest neighborhood school.

The children’s class schedules will be ready for the first day of school and staff will have time to prepare for any special needs.

For enrollment information visit the school system website at www.pgcps.org or call 301-952-6001.

Parents who are enrolling their children for the first time in the United States should call the International Student Guidance Office at 301-445-8460.

Neighborhood Watch Grants Available

County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters (Fourth District) announced the availability of funding applications for Neighborhood Watch groups in the county and Council District 4. Prince George’s County has received $300,000 in federal Department of Justice funding to build and strengthen the county’s crime fighting organizations and communities. Peters mailed copies of the application to Neighborhood Watch groups in District 4.

“This program provides much-needed financial support to those organizations assisting police efforts to reduce crime in our communities,” Peters stated. “After having met with Neighborhood Watch groups in District 4 earlier this year, I hope that they will take advantage of this opportunity to assist their crime prevention and education efforts,” he concluded.

Eligible groups would be able to purchase supplies, including safety vests, T-shirts, flashlights, street signs and communication equipment. The deadline for submission of applications is September 3. Neighborhood Watch groups that are interested can request applications by phone at 301-952-3094 or pick up copies from the county’s police stations.

For further information on the Neighborhood Watch Grant program call Prince George’s County Police Department Deputy Chief Jeffrey Cox at 301-772-4750.

Greenbelt Fire Dept. Recipient of Grant

Senators Barbara A. Mikulski and Paul S. Sarbanes (both D-MD) have announced that Greenbelt is one of three Prince George’s County fire departments that are being awarded a total of $63,150 in federal funding through the Department of Homeland Security’s Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program. Mikulski is on the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee that funds the Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program and fights each year to increase federal money for the program.

“I’m so proud of Maryland’s firefighters, risking their lives to protect others,” she said. “But we need to protect our protectors with the best equipment, training and resources. I will keep fighting for a federal investment in the safety of Maryland’s fire fighters. Congratulations to these Prince George’s County fire departments on being awarded this well-deserved money.”

“The heroism and diligence of America’s firefighters and first responders is crucial to the health and safety of our communities,” said Sarbanes. “These hard-working firefighters deserve the most up-to-date equipment and I am pleased that this funding is being awarded to assist them in their efforts to protect their respective communities.”

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department was awarded $24,750 to purchase a thermal imaging camera, mobile organization equipment and new communications equipment. The thermal imaging camera will enable firefighters to more easily locate victims and fallen firefighters in emergency situations. The organizational and communications technology will help the department to improve the coordination and speed of their responses.

Festival Notes

The 50th Annual Labor Day Festival is just around the corner – just a little more than three weeks away. The committee is promising great weather this year – the rain will “run out” before then, they say. In the meantime, festival fundraising continues.

Fundraising

There will be three more bake sales before the festival – one each weekend – and all on Saturdays. All are on the Co-op ramp. Commemorative T-shirts are still available in grey and green tie-dye. Don’t miss getting this very collectible, commemorative tribute to a very special festival.

“Proud to Be American” T-shirts are still available in all sizes. Raffle tickets for $200 worth of Co-op groceries, a 50/50 drawing, a wooden Longaberger panel chest and a $25 gift certificate to Jaspers are currently being sold and will be sold throughout the festival. Drawings for all raffles will take place on Monday, September 6. The above items can also be purchased by calling Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312 or 301-910-0050.

Art Show

The Labor Day Art Shows take place at the Community Center and are sponsored by the Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA). There are two shows, one for adults and one for children and teens. This is the 42nd year for this event, which gives Greenbelt artists of all ages and abilities the opportunity to acquaint the community with their work.

Entries for the Art Show will be accepted on Friday, September 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Community Center. Fliers with complete information are available at the Community Center and the Greenbelt Library. Barbara Simon, Labor Day Art Show chair, can answer questions. She can be reached at 301-474-2192.

On Stage

For a detailed description of the performers that will grace the stages to entertain festival goers see separate article on page 12.

Photo Show

Entries for the Photo Show will be accepted also on Friday, September 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Community Center. Call Keith Zevallos at 301-474-5542 for additional information. It costs nothing to enter and recognition will be given to winners in various categories.

Information Day

There are still a few spots for groups to participate in Information Day. This day provides participating groups an opportunity to share their cause, mission or product (no sales are permitted) with festival goers. Those who want to participate should contact Dave Pitts at 301-345-

9605 for more information and an application.

Talent Show

Call now to reserve a spot in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Talent Show – auditions/rehearsal are quickly approaching. The Talent Show is on Saturday, September 4 at 6 p.m. The auditions/rehearsals are on August 24 and 31 at 7 p.m. at the Community Center. Call Dennis Lewis at 301-577-1718 for more information.

Parade

Parade Chairperson Linda Ivy is still accepting applications for this year’s Labor Day parade – marching bands, majorettes, dancers, dogs, horses – groups of all types are invited to participate. Ivy can be reached by email at Lindaivy@aol.com.

Shuttle Buses

The festival will once again be offering shuttle bus service from various points in the city. There are still vacancies for shuttle drivers. Without all vacancies filled, the shuttle cannot run on a full schedule. Call Lester Whitmer at 301-345-8897 to sign up to be a shuttle driver. Vans will run from satellite locations at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Greenbelt Elementary and Green Ridge House. The back of the festival pullout (which will be in the August 26 edition of the News Review) will contain the shuttle schedule.

Donations

Businesses that are interested in supporting the festival can contact Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312. Donating businesses will be recognized at the festival itself and also in the festival program.

Volunteers

Individuals interested in being ticket sellers and volunteers in general are still needed to assist with this year’s festival in all areas. This is an opportunity for students in grades 7 through 12 who need community hours to fulfill that requirement. Ticket sellers must be at least 15 years old. Volunteers (who are not students) are also welcome to come and help out.

Call Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312 for more information about general volunteer positions. Call Lenny Wertz at 301-864-0254 for ticket seller positions. There will be a mandatory meeting for ticket sellers on Tuesday, August 31 at 7:30 p.m. at Greenbelt Community Church.

Website

The festival website, www.greenbelt.com/laborday is always a good source for up-to-the-minute information.

Next Meeting

The next festival committee meeting is Thursday, August 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center. It is not too late to volunteer.

Festival Notes is written by Labor Day Festival Chair Patti Brothers.

“National Night Out” Held in Greenbelt

Activities captured during the National Night Out on August 4 at five different locations throughout Greenbelt.

“National Night Out 2004” was celebrated on Tuesday, August 4 this year in five different areas in Greenbelt. An estimated 250 citizens participated in this year’s activities.

In Greenbriar, information tables were set up in three areas. In Phase I there were crime prevention trivia games to play, distribution of brochures and refreshments. Phase II had a “get-to-know-your-neighbor” bingo game with prizes and sodas and sandwiches were served. There were crime prevention brochures available and light refreshments served in Phase III.

In Windsor Green the Mobile Watch Group and Home Owners Association had their annual National Night Out barbeque. Brochures and prizes were given to kids.

Information tables were set up in the 6900 block of Lady Anne Court, brochures were given out and refreshments were served.

Police officers from the Greenbelt Police Department visited the various locations during the evening passing out glow-in-the-dark bracelets and necklaces, badges and coloring books. Bike officers and police cruisers crisscrossed the city to visit as many locations as possible. City councilmembers also visited each of the sites.

Neighborhoods that wish to participate in the 2005 “National Night Out” can contact MPO George Mathews at 240-542-2116.

Labor Day Festival Is Full Of Musical Entertainment

by Patti Brothers

With just three weeks to go until the Labor Day Festival “rocks” the city, Greenbelters can gear up for a full plate of musical entertainment. The festival stage will be the setting for some of the area’s (and west coast’s and Britain’s) finest entertainment. “Herman’s Hermits” will make their debut performance at the festival on Saturday, September 4, at 1 p.m. Get there early to get a great seat. They will take listeners back in time and a good time will be had by all. This is a real treat for festival goers.

“Shoe Suede Blues” featuring Peter Tork (formerly of The Monkees) is returning to the festival this year and will “close out” the festival on Monday afternoon following the parade, another treat for festival goers. The festival committee is pleased to be able to host these world-class groups.

Both “Peters” will be happy to sign albums – so bring them and cameras too. Or buy a commemorative T-shirt to have it autographed.

“Diamond Alley” will open the entertainment on Friday night with their great sounds.

Following Herman’s Hermits on Saturday, the stage will become the home for kids’ entertainment (starting at 3 p.m.) with the Nicolo Whimsey Show – juggling, clowning, storytelling and audience participation galore. The Blue Sky Puppets will follow with a great puppet show for “kids” of all ages. Making his first appearance at the festival will be Magic Mike who has been performing to “sellout” crowds at Greenbelt’s New Year’s Eve party.

The night-time stage will host “SPIN” – new to the festival – with lots of today’s tunes.

The Sunday stage entertainment begins at 1 p.m. with “24U,” a duo that plays songs that range from Celine Dion to Elvis. They will provide a relaxing beginning to the afternoon Sunday activities.

John Hill returns with his easy-listening sounds, always an enjoyable time. The group, “Adrenalin” returning to the festival this year will play tunes from the ’70s, which will take festival goers right into the Miss Greenbelt finals. “Wayne Brown and 2nd Conspiracy” will fill the last night of the festival with rock ’n roll that is sure to get everyone moving. Entertainment on Monday will start at noon, with the return of “Shoe Suede Blues” (featuring Peter Tork, formerly of The Monkees), all the way from California. This group plays blues originals and oldies (with some Monkees tunes thrown in), an exciting way to close out the entertainment on the festival stage.

Greenbelt to Get $20,000 Homeland Security Grant for Preparedness Training

by Thomas X. White

Prince George’s County Executive Jack B. Johnson announced at a June 29 breakfast meeting of the Prince George’s County Municipal Association held in Ocean City that he would be providing all of the 27 Prince George’s municipalities a share of a State of Maryland Homeland Security Grant that was recently awarded to the county.

Johnson will be using about 10 percent of the county’s $2.1 million grant to pass through funds that local governments can use for preparedness training, equipment and training exercises. Amounts provided to the individual cities and towns range from $3,000 to $20,000, with Greenbelt garnering $20,000.

Based on a June 30 letter to Mayor Judith Davis, it is not entirely clear how the pass-through of funds will be implemented. In the letter Johnson indicates that “... in the near future, Greenbelt will be provided a list of resources to choose from as well as terms and conditions of the award application process.”

Since 9/11, federal and state resources to aid local government first responders (fire, rescue and police) have been practically non-existent in spite of advocacy efforts on the part of the Maryland Municipal League, the National League of Cities and the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. The grant received by Prince George’s County was awarded by the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA).

As an example of how Greenbelt is affected by heightened alerts in the Washington Metropolitan Area, City Manager Michael McLaughlin indicated that “during such alerts, the Greenbelt police force switches from its regular shift to a 12 hour shift,” with a resulting increase in overtime payments for Greenbelt officers directly impacting the City of Greenbelt budget.
